

LC Labs presents

YELLOW PAGES

WORKFLOW THREE

Let your fingers do the walking and help us expose the stories of U.S.
cities hidden in historical Yellow Pages

LEARN MORE

Marking up business names, addresses, phone numbers and other details, and transcribing business information.

CHOOSE A WORKFLOW

The Yellow Pages project has three separate workflows with different tasks. The tasks in each workflow play an essential role in exposing the stories of U.S. cities and businesses hidden in historical Yellow Pages. Try them all!

WORKFLOW 1

Mark up business
groupings, advertisements and telephone tips on full-page Yellow Page images.
No typing, just drawing boxes!

WORKFLOW 2

Mark up business types and listings from Workflow 1,
and transcribe the business types. Choose between drawing boxes and typing
the fields you see.

WORKFLOW 3

Mark up business
addresses, phone numbers, and other information from Workflow 2 and transcribe those details. Choose between drawing boxes
and typing the fields you see.

SELECT A COLLECTION

BIRMINGHAM,
ALABAMA, 1955

DUBUQUE, IOWA, 1943

COLORADO SPRINGS,
COLORADO, 1954

CHICAGO CZECH
AND SLOVAK
AMERICAN, 1939

This project is built using Scribe: document transcription, crowdsourced.

The Yellow Pages are historical documents that contain racially and culturally insensitive graphics, language, outdated terminology, and other potentially triggering content. As you are performing tasks on this site, if you encounter images that you would prefer not to see, mark, or transcribe, click the DONE button on the screen at any time to move to a new image. For questions or comments regarding sensitive content, access, and use related to this collection, please contact lc-labs@loc.gov.
